

Marie's Corner: It's about the people

Together grabs a couch with a leading light in the sofa universe.

When it comes to making the best chairs, there are few that can match Philippe Vanhemelen and Serge Silber, the brains behind Marie's Corner, which they describe as offering "unique, endlessly customizable armchairs based on production according to traditional methods. And with only one obsession in mind: the comfort, the comfort and the comfort!"

Philippe and Serge have owned the brand since 2016, and since then have prided themselves on using only the very best materials, whether foam, feathers, clothes, wood or people!

"It is all about the people," say Serge and Philippe. "Our team is devoted to nothing but the very best – and we hope you will appreciate our new models as much as we did when creating them!"

And the people? José Manuel López Osorio is one of Marie's Corner's feather suppliers, and he inherited much of his skill from his father, who built the machines that Marie's Corner uses to make its cushions, all of which contain the finest mixture of duck and goose feathers, and which use a petrol-based synthetic foam for maximum comfort.

With samples of their art now gracing hotels, restaurants bars and cafes all over Europe, there is no doubting the brand's strength and appeal, as well as numerous articles featuring the brands in magazines, papers and on websites across Europe.

And it's all about craftsmanship down the generations, with the people who make the chairs having been in the business their whole careers.
